Long Version

Tommy Valentine is a prominent advocate within the American Catholic and pro-life communities, currently serving as the Director of the Catholic Accountability Project at CatholicVote, the largest Catholic political advocacy organization in the United States. With a robust background in faith-based activism, legislative strategy, and community organizing, Valentine is recognized for his commitment to advancing religious freedom, defending the sanctity of life, and promoting policies aligned with Catholic values.

Valentine holds a deep-rooted belief in the power of civic engagement to shape a just society. This conviction guides his work as he helps lead CatholicVote's national efforts to educate and mobilize Catholic voters, equipping them with resources to make informed decisions that reflect their faith.

Known for his articulate voice in the public sphere, he frequently writes and speaks on the intersections of faith, morality, and governance, emphasizing the role that Catholics can play in American democracy. His work has appeared in National Review, RealClearPolitics, the Daily Wire, The Hill ... Valentine has appeared on Fox News, Relevant Radio, Newsmax, EWTN, and other national and local outlets.

Before joining CatholicVote, Valentine worked on various political campaigns and at several non-profits. He was the youngest member of the platform committee at the 2016 Republican National Convention. He is a graduate of Franciscan University of Steubenville.
